

Introduction

The aim of this report is to relay my trip to Norway, with all its strengths and weaknesses.

The Host Family

They were very lovable, kind and helpful, they were like true parents. They gave me a wonderful room where to sleep and stay on my own. Furthermore, they brought me to the capital Oslo, giving me a chance to visit it. We used to joke and to talk about interesting things. We will see certainly see each other soon when they come visit Puglia.

The Camp

The camp was situated on a lake so it was wonderful during every hour. It was built obviously in a Norwegian way. I can't say that the staff was the greatest, although a few were an exception. Sometimes there were troubles with communication and with their behaviour, as the camp leaders were at times rude and spoke to us in an inappropriate way- but in the end the trip went well.

The Excursions

We had the chance of visiting great places. In particular the three day trip to the mountain was something spectacular, with the beautiful glacier and rivers. Sometimes we went on repetitive trips that could maybe rethought, but in some way still enjoyable.

The Exchange Students

The main aim of the trip was to get in touch with people of different countries and of different cultures. Personally, I had never had the chance to speak to people from so many different countries at once, therefore I had the chance to experience different cultures. This is the aspect I'm most grateful for.

The Themes Regarding the Environment

To do something that dealt with the environment was great as I'm starting Environmental Engineering this September. . It's important to make people aware of these topics to make some changes, even better if it starts from young people. I definitely learnt something new on these issues.

Norway

Of course, visiting Norway was something great. I had wanted to visit this country for years, now I finally had the chance to. Having the chance to to see the housing, the cities and new people was very interesting, an opportunity which I will always cherish and remember.
